Today, we face increasingly complex issues and challenges, and for tackling these, we need multi-dimensional thought processes and problem-solving skills. Education needs to focus on this and our aim is to help students develop such skills through liberal arts and social sciences offered at SLASS.

Dr. P. Sathyanarayanan

President, SRM University-AP, Andhra Pradesh

The requirements of the new age world are complex and constantly changing at a rapid pace. In order to face the challenges of the future, universities should provide students appropriate knowledge and skill set, and prepare them to be lifelong learners. Furthermore, the complexities of the future workplace require a free and open mind, and a flexible approach from the students. Hence, it is imperative that the universities must consider the importance of liberal arts education in all their offerings. Being a new age University, SRM University AP lays strong emphasis on liberal arts education through its School of Liberal Arts and Social Sciences by offering not only liberal arts degree programmes but also integrating technical education with liberal arts education.
